BPM - BANCA POPOLARE DI MILANO

“

RES was committed for a study directed to highlight those elements that could have obstructed a fast and effective growth of the number of other firms for which BPM would have had to supply IT services.

BPM and RES stated three objectives:

- The systems architecture review, from the standpoint of basic software and subsystems
- The review of the way of qualifying objects for their multiple target systems management (including a new naming convention)
- A complete reorganization of the objects change processes (including the usage of the RES Suite architecture).

By carrying out the solutions identified in the study, BPM achieved a centralized management of objects that makes it more light and less costly.
